

DVD of the “Internet Café/Church Website Lesson”

Learn How to Use Our Church’s New Website

If you missed the recent lesson on how to use our church’s new website, or want a “refresher”, you can get a DVD copy of the lesson. Pick up this DVD at the church office, and learn how to use computers to visit this website where you can read The Beacon and the church’s Annual Report (and see the photographs in color). You can also look at the church calendar, view past Sunday services, learn from committee webpages, communicate with Don Taylor and others through Don’s new blog site, and more.

The Eco-Justice Team held its annual “Soup, Salad, and Speakers” event after church on January 25th, and this year, it was an “Internet Café”. Led by Beth Hubbard, the Team cooked up some great soups, provided a tasty salad, and served them with bread and desert. They used mostly locally grown or harvested ingredients that were organically grown so the meal was healthy for everyone and gentle on the land and water it came from----therefore better for all of God’s Creation.

The Eco-Justice Team and the High Tech Team then provided a lesson on how to use computers to look at our church’s website and all the good things it has to offer. Use of the website will improve communication among members of our congregation and with staff----and hopefully reduce the amount of paper we buy, use, and recycle.

You can also review the lesson through the archived webcast at www.newportfpc.org/content/webcast , though you’ll need to move the slider ahead at the bottom of the screen to skip the first ½ hour of “dead air”. For more information, contact Barry McPherson at 574-6111, (503)708-8688 (cellular), or bdmcpherson@coho.net.

Hi! I’m a little mouse----and I’ll help you use the church’s website! No cheese needed.
